Dear Josh:

I have been out of town and thus have just received your note of February 28th.

The Science Times has accepted an article of mine on, of all things, giraffe behavior! When I met with them, soon after writing to you last November, they told me they had adequate staff for some of the things I had suggested, but that they needed behavioral studies!!! Such are the ways of journalism.

However, I have not abandoned the idea of an interview with you. I am wondering where to try to get it placed, and am mulling it over. If I tried for the Times Magazine, it would have to be one of those personality pieces, involving your family, how you live and all that, and I don't know whether you would agree to such exposure. Then, there is Harper's and Atlantic Monthly. What do you think?

My best

Frankie
